Made In America

Now comes the slogan, "Made in America." Never before in the history of this country was such a wonderful opportunity for its people. For centuries our laboring men have been held down by the cheap pauper labor of Europe. Now that the war has practically stopped all imports, the various manufactures of this country are in a position to run day and night at their fullest capacity. The opportunity is beyond the possibility of statistics. It reaches every home, every industry, and effects the people like the genial sunshine. There is no excuse for idleness, no excuse for bread lines, no reason why one should say "I can't get employment." Idleness will disappear, the best of wages will be paid and the hum of industry will be heard over the entire land. Instead of the war being a detriment to us from a commercial standpoint as was at first feared, it will be a blessing to this country, because, when we learn to depend on ourselves, to get all of our various industries alive and working at their fullest capacity, there will be such a season of prosperity and rejoicing in this country that will make us see and understand that it is best to patronize home industries and we will continue to do so. The farmers are rejoicing, the manufacturers are rejoicing and the middle man cannot suffer very much when those on both sides of him are enjoying the high tide of prosperity.

Total Depravity

This is the age when the old doctrine of original sin and total depravity of the human race has its inning. In Europe where we have the oightest civilization, culture and refinement, the people are flying at each others throats like wild animals. The higher their learning and culture, the greater their ability to inflict death on their opponents. The ingenuity of man is taxed to its uttermost to produce a death dealing instrument more deadly than any heretofore conceived. And every day brings forward some new scheme by which the life blood of the flower of the country can be spilled.

The New Revenue Measure

In order to meet the anticipated deficit, Congress has practically adopted a bill which will raise about one hundred million dollars. In doing so they have levied a tax on gasoline, railroad freight, beer, cigarettes and wines and some minor articles. But the gigantic whiskey trust has been left untouched. It is queer indeed that those who are called to represent the entire people and to guard and protect their interest, will single out and put a war tax in time of peace on the things that enters every honest man's home, to-wit: freight bills and railroad tickets. When you levy a tax on the commerce of the country you strike a blow to industry and you touch the pocketbook of every man, it matters not what his occupation may be, and you touch those things that vitally effect his household, his wearing apparel and his food stuffs. You tax the essentials of life. Yet at the command of the giant whiskey trust, a national congress allows itself to be brushed aside and refuses to tax that which is a curse to the people. If there is anything that could have been taxed and practically not missed by the people, it is the whiskey tax. This article is user less from any standpoint so far as the health and the morals of the people are concerned, and yet it is left untouched, and this, too, at President Wilson's behest.

It is true that a tax has been levied on beer and light wines, but the great whiskey interests are exempted. Not only has Congress levied a tax or agreed to do so on the commerce of the country, but it has agreed to increase the tax on incomes, and at the same time to reduce the exemptions so that it will take in incomes of $2000. Thus is a body blow dealt at industry and meritorious labor from every viewpoint. Next we may expect to hear that bank checks have been taxed and postage raised, and all for the purpose of making the people pay an imaginary war deficit.

We said in our last issue that the people were not interested directly in this deficit and that they could buy produce of our home manufacturers instead of buying the imported goods, and there can be no purpose in the levying of this enormous tax except for the purpose of keeping in office the horde of office holders who now over run the government, and of whom at least nearly fifty per cent, could be discharged and the business of the government would not suffer thereby.

We are surprised that Congress would allow a blow to be struck at commercial integrity, and would work over time in protecting the whiskey interest. And this question will be heard from at the ideo of November. The Democratic party should have a caution how it legislates at this time.

The Clay City Times which for the last few weeks has been reported by the local papers as several times sold, has at last been sold to Mr. M. P. O'Mara, who assumed the position of editor in the last issue which came to our exchange. The paper has been enlarged to a seven column folio and is a very creditable sheet.

While we welcome Mr. O'Mara to the field of Journalism, and wish him all success possible, it is with regret that we will lose from the editorial field the retired editor, Mr. J. E. Burgher, who for the last ten years has conducted a very excellent sheet and has done much to benefit Powell county and its vicinity.

Lee's Collegiate Institute in Jackson, which was formerly a part of the old Central University at this place, opened last week with a large attendance. This Institution has performed a great work in the uplift of Breathitt county.

Benjamin F. Hackett, a wealthy land owner of Woodford county, died at Versailles last Monday. He was related to the Hacketts of this county.

Circuit Court began in Danville Monday with the Hon. Chas. Hardin, presiding. A large amount of important business is to be transacted at this term of court.

Old Home Burns On Night Of His Death.

William Huddleston, aged about 70 years, died at the county infirmary last Thursday morning. Mr. Huddleston was at one time a well-to-do farmer of this county and a remarkable coincidence in connection with his death was the destruction of his childhood home on the same night by fire.

The house, which is the one in which Mr. Huddleston was born and raised and which is now occupied by George Stewart, caught fire from a defective flue about nine o'clock and was burned to the ground, the family saving only a few articles of furniture. Mr. Huddleston died a few hours later, at an early hour Thursday.

The body of Mr. Huddleston was interred at Concord Friday. He was never married. He was the uncle of Mrs. Lizzie McCormick of this county.—Carle Mercury.

Luke McLuke Says

Cincinnati Enquirer
A man wants a hat like the other fellows are wearing. A woman won't wear a hat if another woman has one like it.

Some men get by because they always use good judgment as to who to call a liar. Love is blind, they say. But that isn't the reason why a woman never sees that the buttons are off her husbands clothes.

The old-fashioned woman who used to tell a White Lie now has a daughter who can lie in all the Fashionable Shades.

The world is growing better. The vaudeville announcements do not include the name of a female who is Starring on the strength of the fact that she shot her husband Because She Loved Him So.

Mother announces today that she is glad school has begun because she can get rid of the children during the day and will get a little Peace. And in about a week she will announce that she wishes school was closed and she didn't have to get up early and wash and dress the children.

When a Lodge announces that Important Business is to be transacted at a meeting a few straglers show up. But if the announcement is made that a Keg will be Tapped there isn't a member absent.

With the exception of lots of ink and adjectives there isn't much in a love letter. Some married couples always remind you of a horse hitched up with a mule.

It always makes a man mad when his wife acts as if he had no right to be.

There's a whole lot of lads who can name all of the books in the Bible in rotation who can't remember the dollar they borrowed two days after they get it.

A fat woman will pin a piece of ribbon around her torso and feel happy because she has a waist line.

About this time of the year the June Bride begins to wonder what she is smoking when she imagined that her husband was Different From Other Men.

President Wilson Calls For Peace Prayers.

President Wilson has issued a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to pray for peace in Europe, and has designated Sunday the fourth day of October a day of prayer and supplication, and requests all God-fearing people to go to their places of worship and there unite in prayer for peace.

Champ Clark A Kentuckian Interested In Kentucky Illiteracy.

He sends to Kentucky teachers enlisted in this campaign a message of hearty sympathy and good cheer.

General News

President Wilson has expressed the hope that J. C. W. Beckham will be elected Senator in Nov. and has declared that "any other result would be a great disappointment." Needless to say, the President will not be disappointed.

Following the sudden rising of Turkey Creek in Kansas City, thousands of homes were flooded and great damage was done to the city. The damage is estimated at $1,500,000.

Mr. D. S. Waide, aged sixty-seven, one of the oldest merchants of Nicholasville, died last week of apoplexy. He is survived by a wife and three children.

Judge Hieatt of Frankfort, has decided that at the November election the people of Frankfort may vote on the proposition of adopting the commission form of government.

The lawmakers at Washington observed Labor Day last Monday. Congress was not in session, and all the Government departments were closed. The day afforded quiet enjoyment for all.

Colonel Roosevelt spent two days last week in Louisiana on a speaking tour, telling the natives why they should elect "Bull Moosers."

NORMAL NOTES

Eastern State Normal began its fall term Tuesday, Sept. 8th, with every department of the Institution filled. Never in its history has the outlook for the school been more encouraging. The Normal Training Classes show enormous increase over last year's first term, despite the supposed tightness of finances throughout the country.

The significant fact that there are more High School graduates than ever enrolled among the Normal Students proves that our county and city Superintendents are awake to the importance of professional training.

The Model High School is full to overflowing. New desks are being put in the Assembly Room. Paul A. Greenamy, A. B., of Oberlin College, a High School man of wide experience and profound scholarship, will be principal. The Model School grades are crowded to such an extent that more than a hundred young people had to be turned away for lack of seating capacity. Miss Emma Hemlepp, of Ashland, Ky. graduate of Eastern and special student at Kirksville State Normal, Mo.; during the past year, also a teacher of a number of years' successful work in Ashland, will be Critic Teacher of the Seventh and Eighth Grades.
